Intellectual Property and Inator Patent Policy — Version 2.0

1. Purpose

Version 2.0 shortens the filing deadline after a rival villain patented the Turn-Everything-Into-Cheese-inator eleven days before we did.

2. Scope

This policy covers every invention made on company time or with company lasers.

3. Ownership

3.1 Company Ownership. Every inator invented by an employee belongs to the company. The inventor keeps naming rights, provided the name ends in '-inator'.

3.2 Naming Disputes. If two employees claim the same inator name, the name goes to whoever built the working prototype first.

4. Patent Filing

4.1 Filing Deadline. Inventors must now submit an invention disclosure within 21 days of a working prototype, down from 60 days.

4.2 Inventor Bonus. Each granted patent now earns a bonus of 2,500 dollars, and the framed photo with the CEO is optional.

5. Trade Secrets

Self-destruct button placement is treated as a trade secret and may not be described in any patent application.

6. Acknowledgment

Inventing anything constitutes acknowledgment of this policy.
